

Privacy Policy

Zest

Publishing Inc. respects your privacy and is committed to protecting it. Zest Publishing Inc. ("we") is committed to ensuring that your privacy is protected. This Privacy Policy explains how we use the information we collect about you, how you can instruct us if you prefer to limit the use of that information and procedures that we have in place to safeguard your privacy.

Cookies

Cookie is a small text file which is either stored on the user/client hard drive or in memory until the browser is closed. Cookies help trace users from page to page on a website. They are generated by web servers when the user enters a website, and are passed to the user's computer and stored for subsequent future access.

We

use cookies for session data (such as logins) and for tracking data for statistics and trends. We do not gather any personal information via cookies.

You

can set your browser to accept, not accept or give you a choice to accept cookies. Not accepting cookies may mean you will not be able to enjoy our website to its fullest.

We

may use aggregate information and statistics for the purposes of monitoring usage of this website in order to help us develop this website and our services. These statistics will not include information that can be used to identify any individual.

Form filling and the use of your personal data

request personal data when you choose to perform certain functions, such as joining a mailing list, entering a competition or making a purchase. These are optional functions but this information is essential for us to fulfil the services requested. You may be contacted by a Zest Publishing representative in relation to products or services offered by Zest Publishing Inc., but this personal data will not be passed on to third party organisations.

You will be able to unsubscribe from mailing lists at any time.

Third party organisations

When

you request information from a third party affiliate company promoted on our website, your data is made available to that company or those companies from which you have requested information. Your personal data is not made available to any organisation from which you have not requested information. We have no control over the privacy policies of any third party company featured on our website or in our magazine, and accept no responsibility for the use of your personal data by those organisations.

Sale of business

In the event that our company or Lime magazine title is sold or integrated with another firm or it is proposed to do so, then your details may be disclosed to our advisers and any prospective purchasers and their advisers and will be passed on to the new owners of the firm or magazine title.

Your consent

By submitting your information you consent to the use of that information as set out in this Privacy Policy. If we change our Privacy Policy, we will post the changes on this page and may place notices on other pages of this Website, so that you may be aware of the information we collect and how we use it at all times.
